THE WORLD'S MOST FAMOUS LEOPARD

"But leopards ARE famous!" Leopold's mother said rather sharply.

"I mean really famous, Mom!" Leopold said, twitching his tail emotionally. "I mean, like the lion is famous as the king of the beasts, and the elephant for his size and for never forgetting. Things like that! What do people say about us leopards?"

Leopold's mother saw that her son was in earnest and she thought hard. "I know," she exclaimed at last. "Leopards are famous because they can't change their spots!"

"Spots!" exploded Leopold. "What a thing to be famous for!" He stomped furiously, lashing his tail in indignation. "Spots! Well, this is ONE leopard who isn't going to be famous for spots!"

He stalked off into the jungle, calling back over his shoulder, "Good-bye, Mom! I'm going out into the world now. When you hear from me next I'll be 'Leopold, the world's most famous leopard!'"

A few minutes later Leopold came upon a sleeping lion. "Mr. Lion," he said timidly, "Would you mind waking up for a second?"

"Why?" yawned the lion, keeping his eyes shut tight.

"I want to learn to be famous!" said

Leopold.

"Who are you?" asked the lion, still not wanting to open his eyes.

"Leopold the leopard."

"You're famous enough for your spots. Go to sleep." And the lion rolled over, ending the conversation.

Leopold was smart enough not to get angry at the lion, so he held in his fury about the spots until he came upon a zebra grazing on the plain. With a roar he seized the hapless zebra and snarled, "Don't you mention spots to me if you value your life!"

"I won't!" said the terrified zebra. "I know how you feel. Don't forget, I have stripes!"

This appeased Leopold somewhat. "How can I become famous?" he asked.

The zebra was afraid not to answer, and he knew he couldn't mention the spots. He thought desperately. "I know!" he squeaked happily. "Join the circus!"

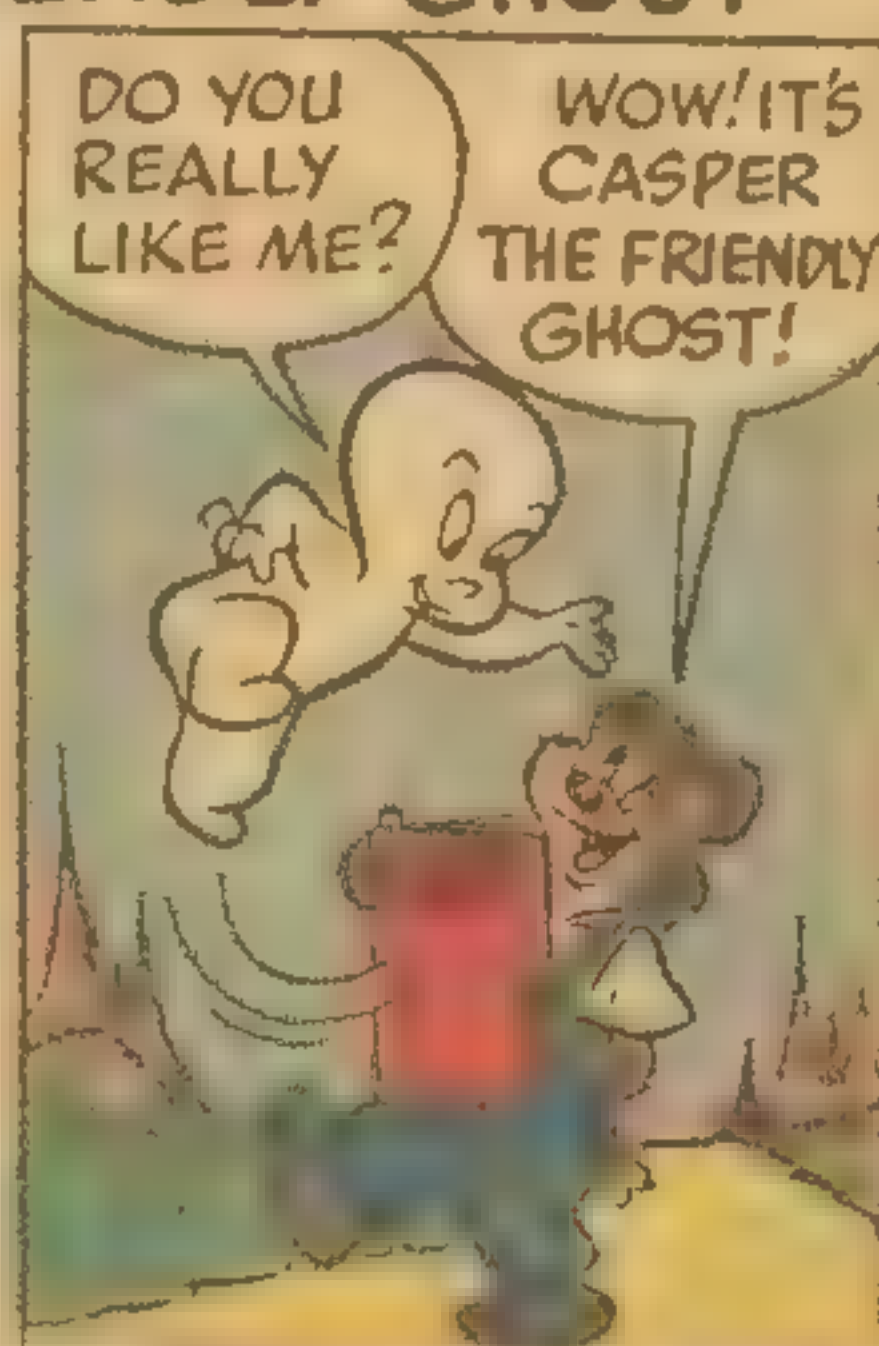

A few days later Leopold burst breathlessly from out of the underbrush to tell his mother the good news.

"Mama!" he roared, "I've come to pack my things! I've joined the circus! I'm going to make leopards REALLY famous!"

"Oh, I'm so happy for you," his mother said. "You did just what you said you would. I can see the posters now: 'Leopold, the world's most famous leopard!'"

"Er, Mom . . ." Leopold stammered, embarrassed. "There's just one thing. When I signed the contract they insisted I change my name to 'SPOT!'"

CASPER, THE FRIENDLY GHOST

THE BOOKWORM

Rollo's big brother Ralph laughed out loud. "In my school books again, are you, shrimp? You're too little to even read them."

"Oh, no, I'm not," said Rollo stoutly.

Ralph would have teased his little brother some more, but Mrs. Rabbit came into the room with Ralph's scarf. "Hurry, Ralphie," she urged, "We have to go gather some lettuce leaves for supper. And, Rollo, don't you open the front door for any strangers! There's a hungry fox lurking about! I have only you two boys, and you're both very precious to me!"

After his mother and brother had left, Rollo curled up on the floor with his brother's books. He loved to read, and while his mother was proud of his bright little mind, she worried that too much book learning would make him impractical and not too fit for the everyday forest.

Rollo didn't worry about being practical. He felt that anything he learned could be put to profitable use some day, and he wished his mother wouldn't feel he was such a helpless baby. Then suddenly, as he flipped the pages of his book, he heard a gentle tapping at the door. He wasn't startled. Surely no fox would knock so softly!

But he remembered his mother's warning and asked from behind the locked door, "Who's there, please?"

"This is Ralph's teacher at the forest school," came a reply in a sweet voice.

His little paw on the latch, Rollo again remembered his mother's warning. "I can't let you in if you're a stranger," he called.

The sweet voice outside laughed. "You're very clever to be careful," it said. "But Ralph has often told me how clever his little brother is. He's told me that you're a small, affectionate family, just you two brothers and your mother. Doesn't that convince you I'm no stranger?"

Rollo started to lift the heavy latch.

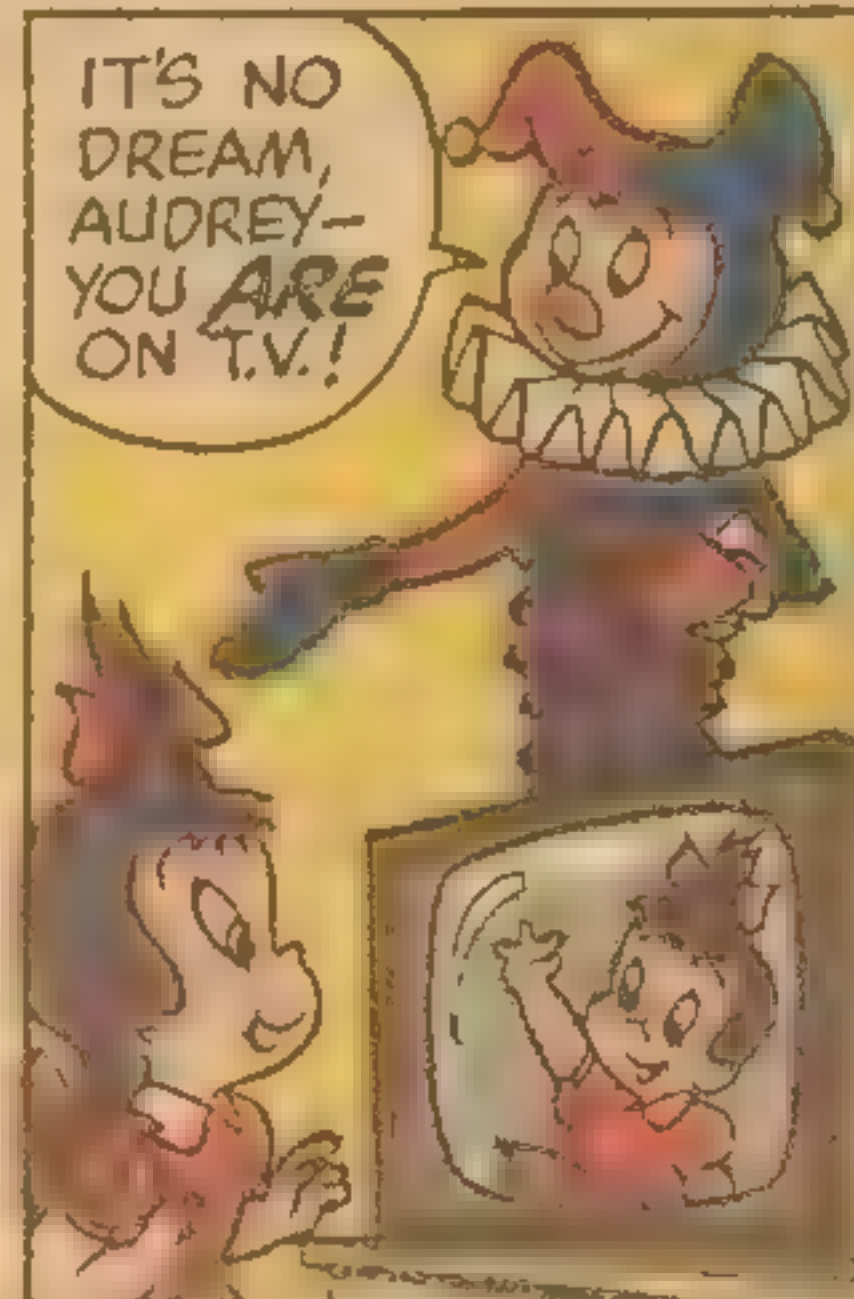

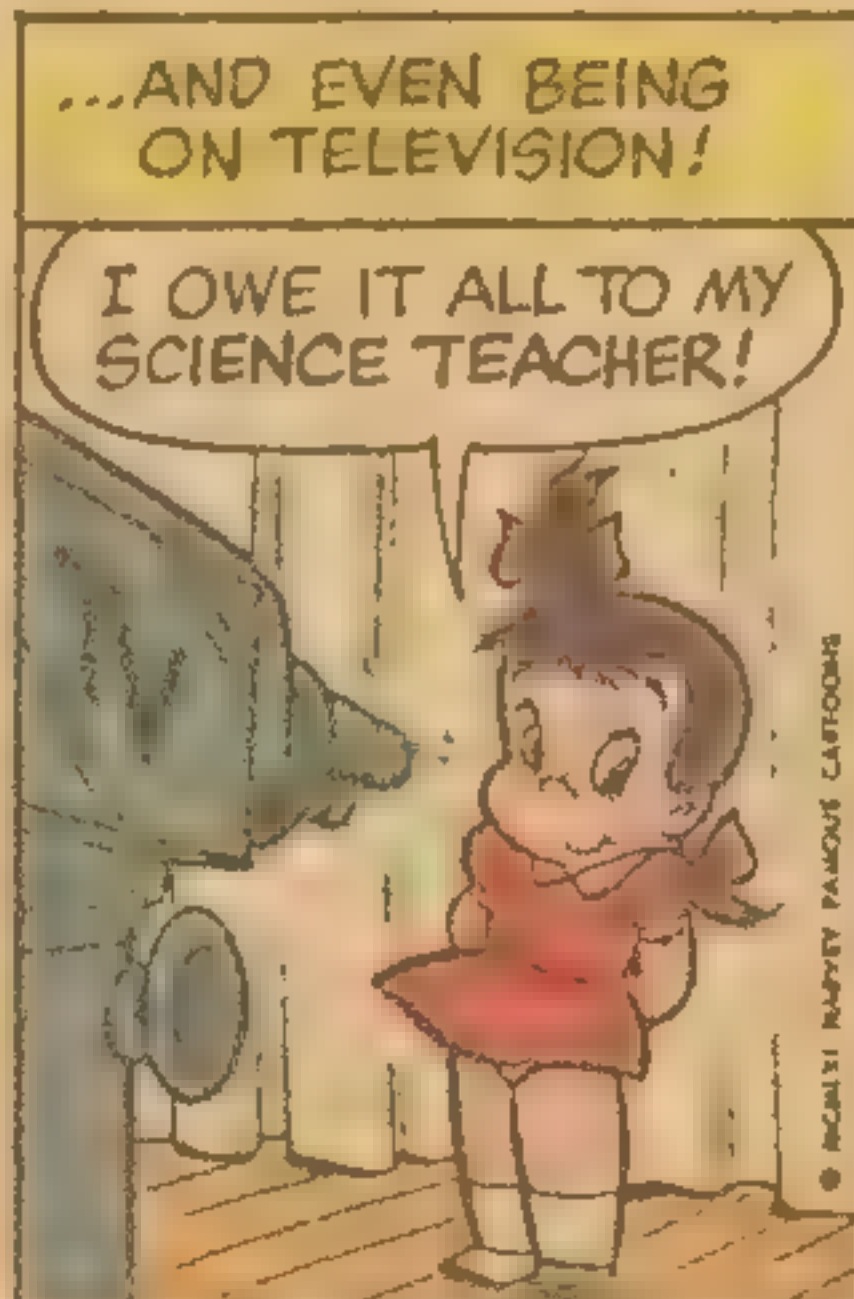

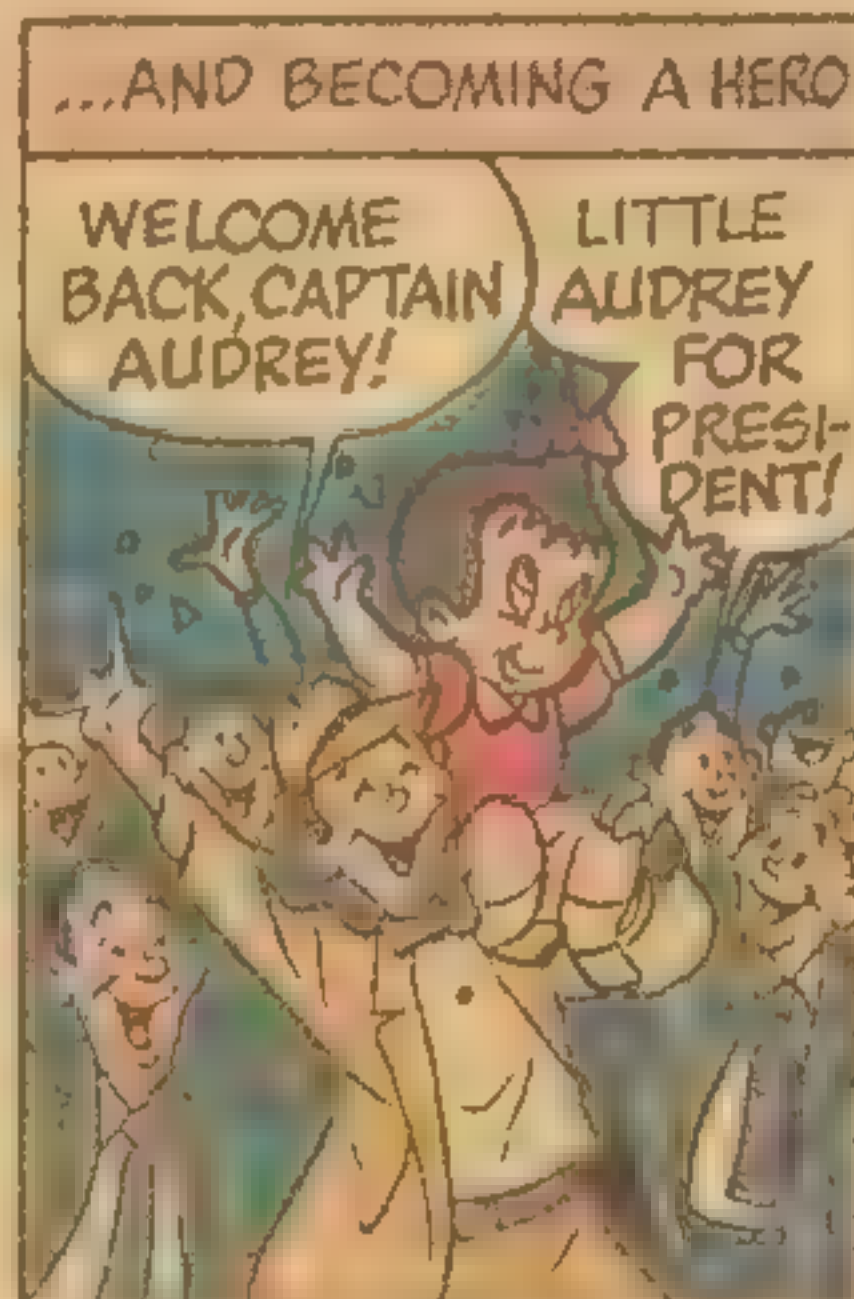

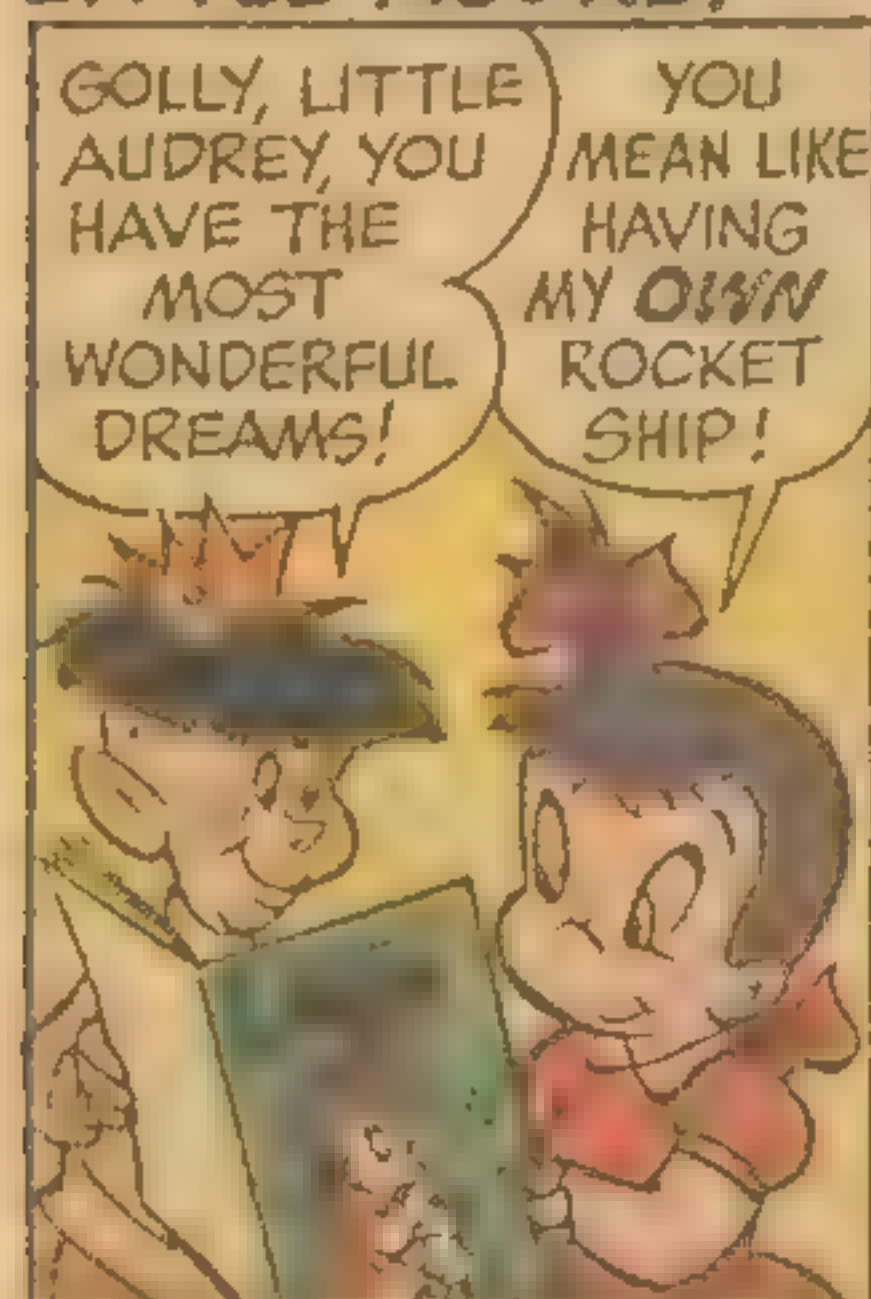

"I even know your name!" the voice went on. "You're Rollo, Ralph's youngest brother!"

Rollo slammed the latch back into place. "And you're the mean old fox!" he shouted. "Go away!"

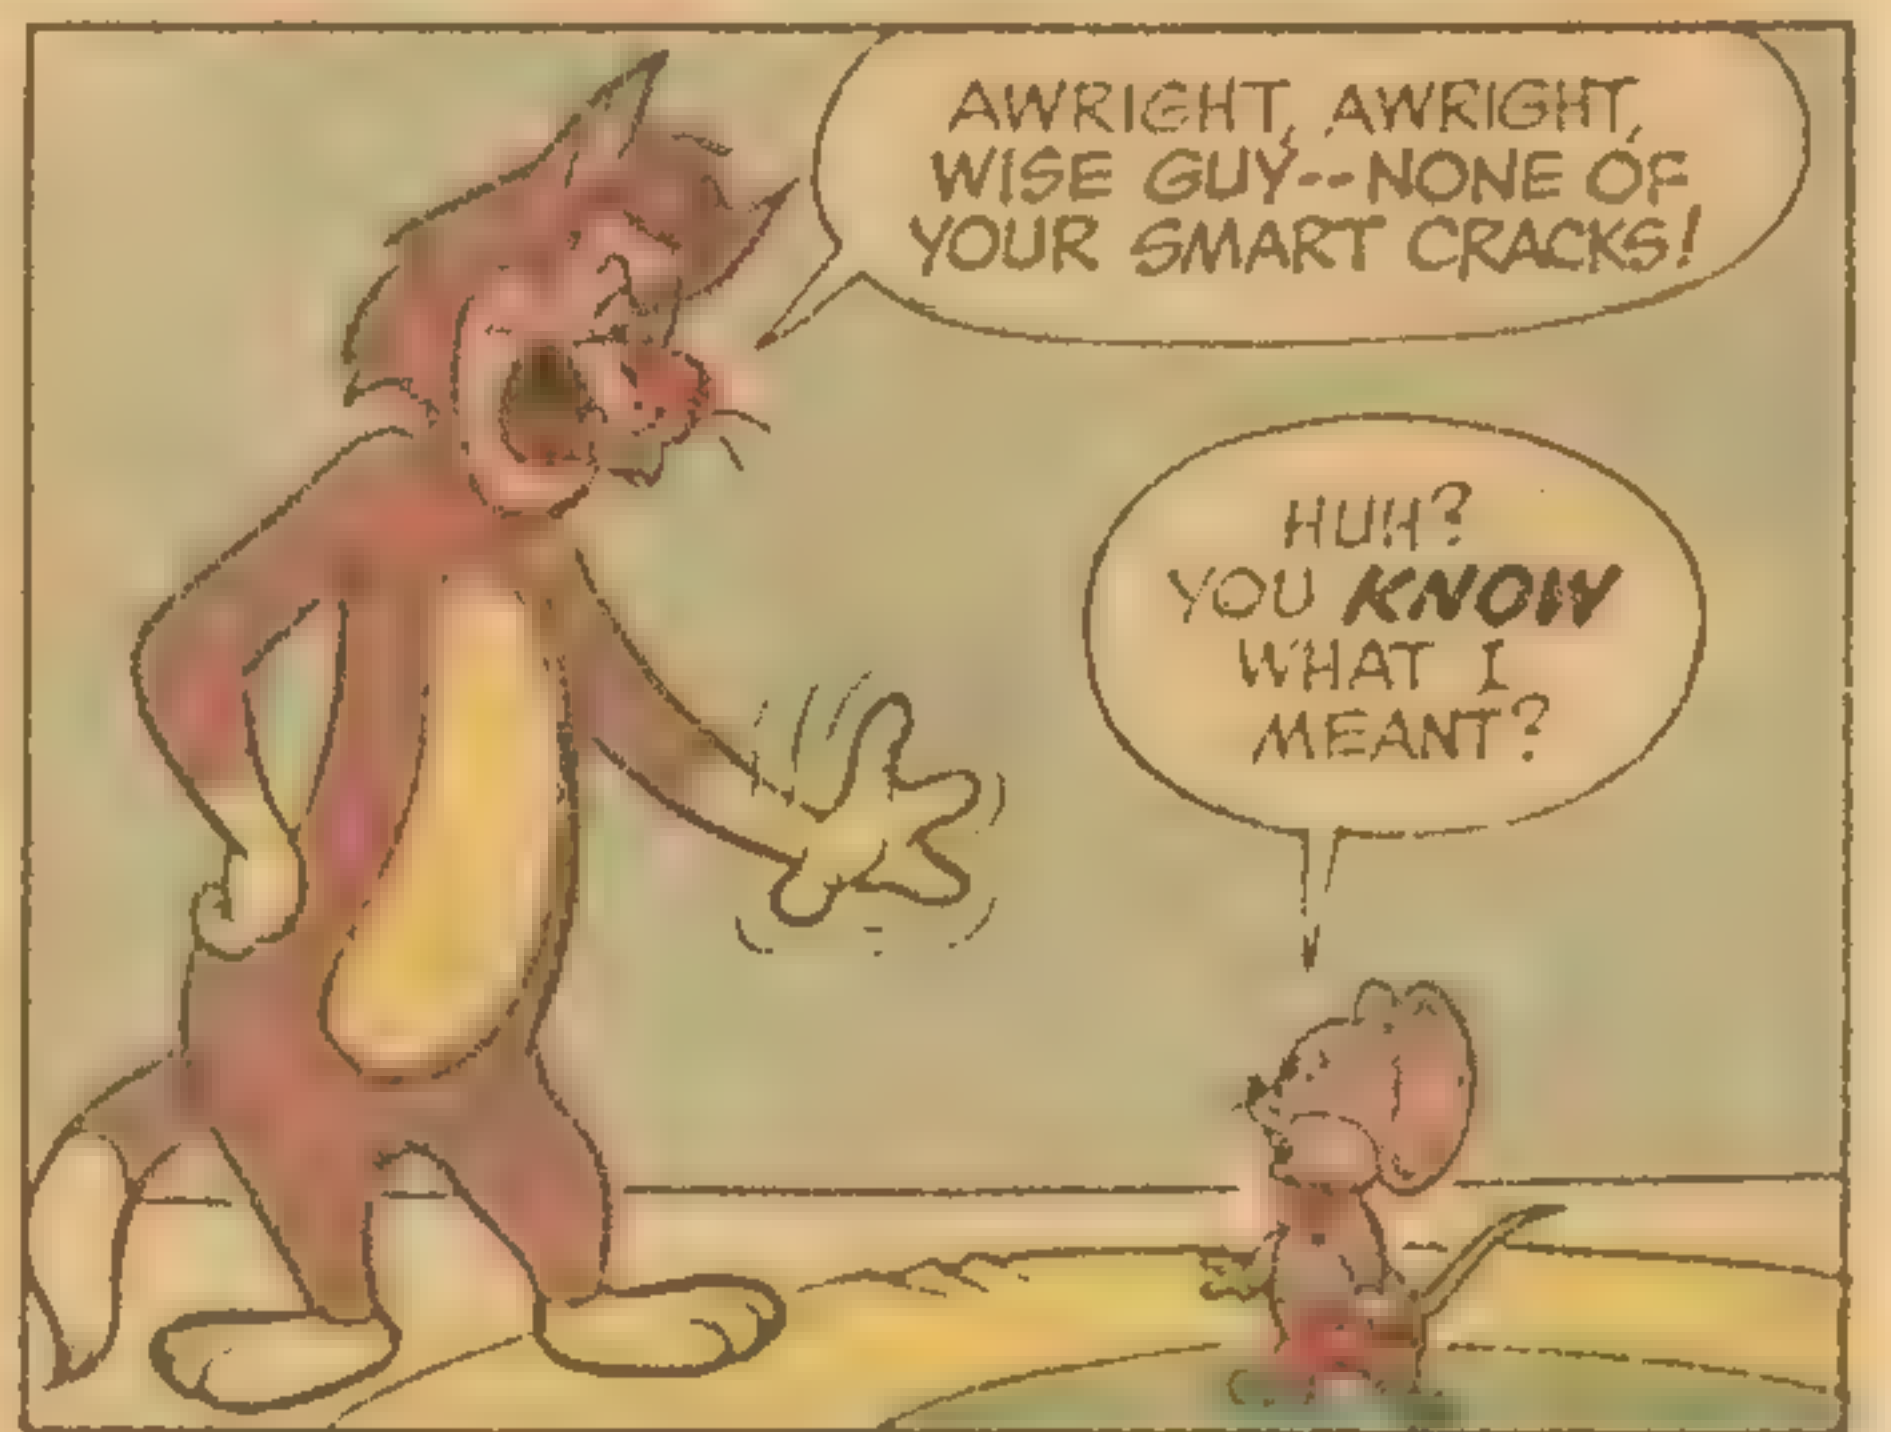

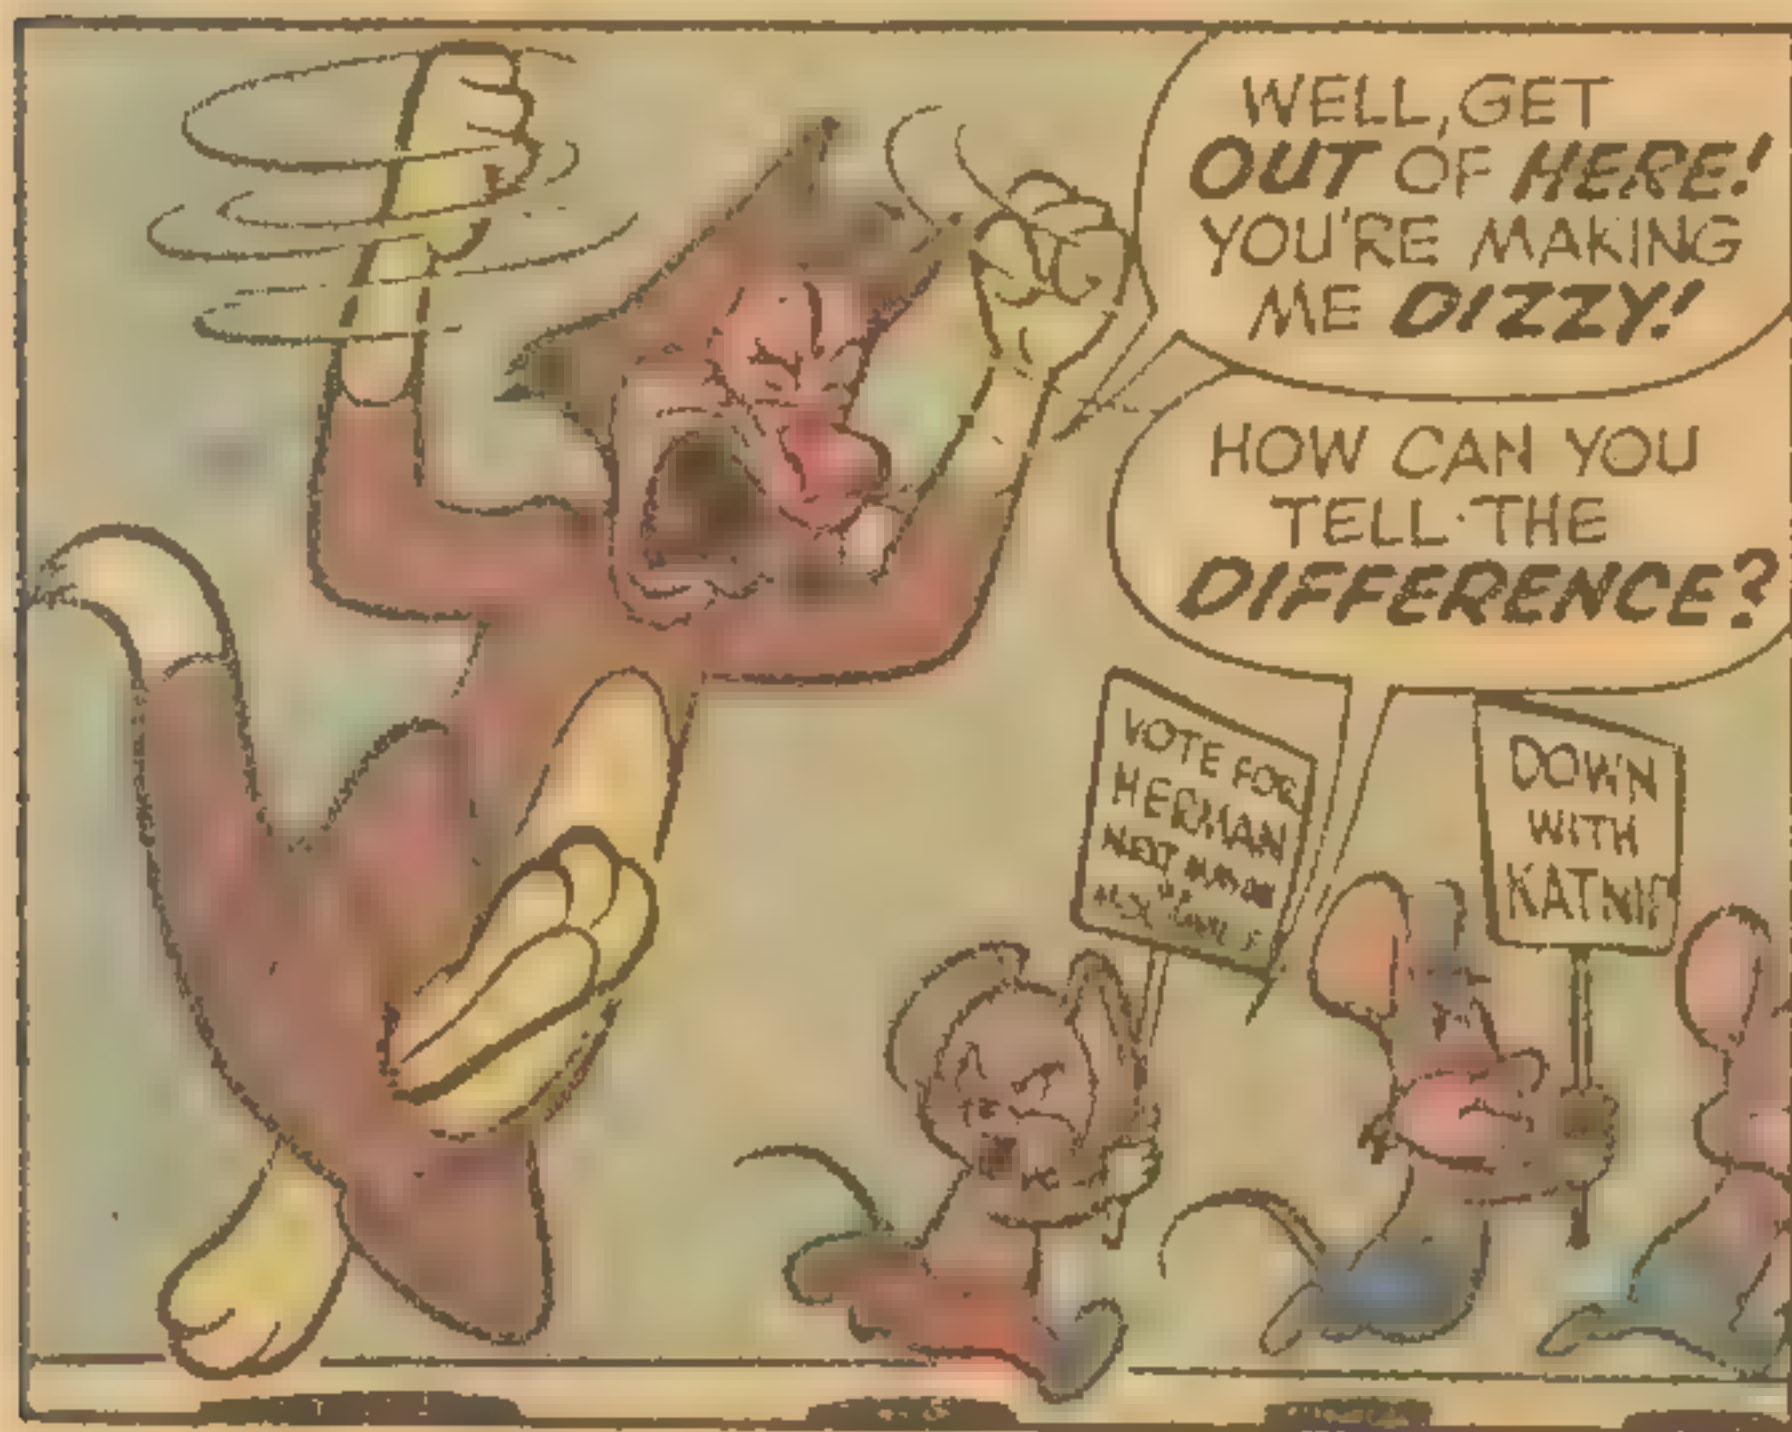

A little later Mrs. Rabbit and Ralph came bursting into the den. "Oh," exclaimed his mother in relief. "You're all right. There are fox tracks all around outside. I'm so glad you kept the door locked!"

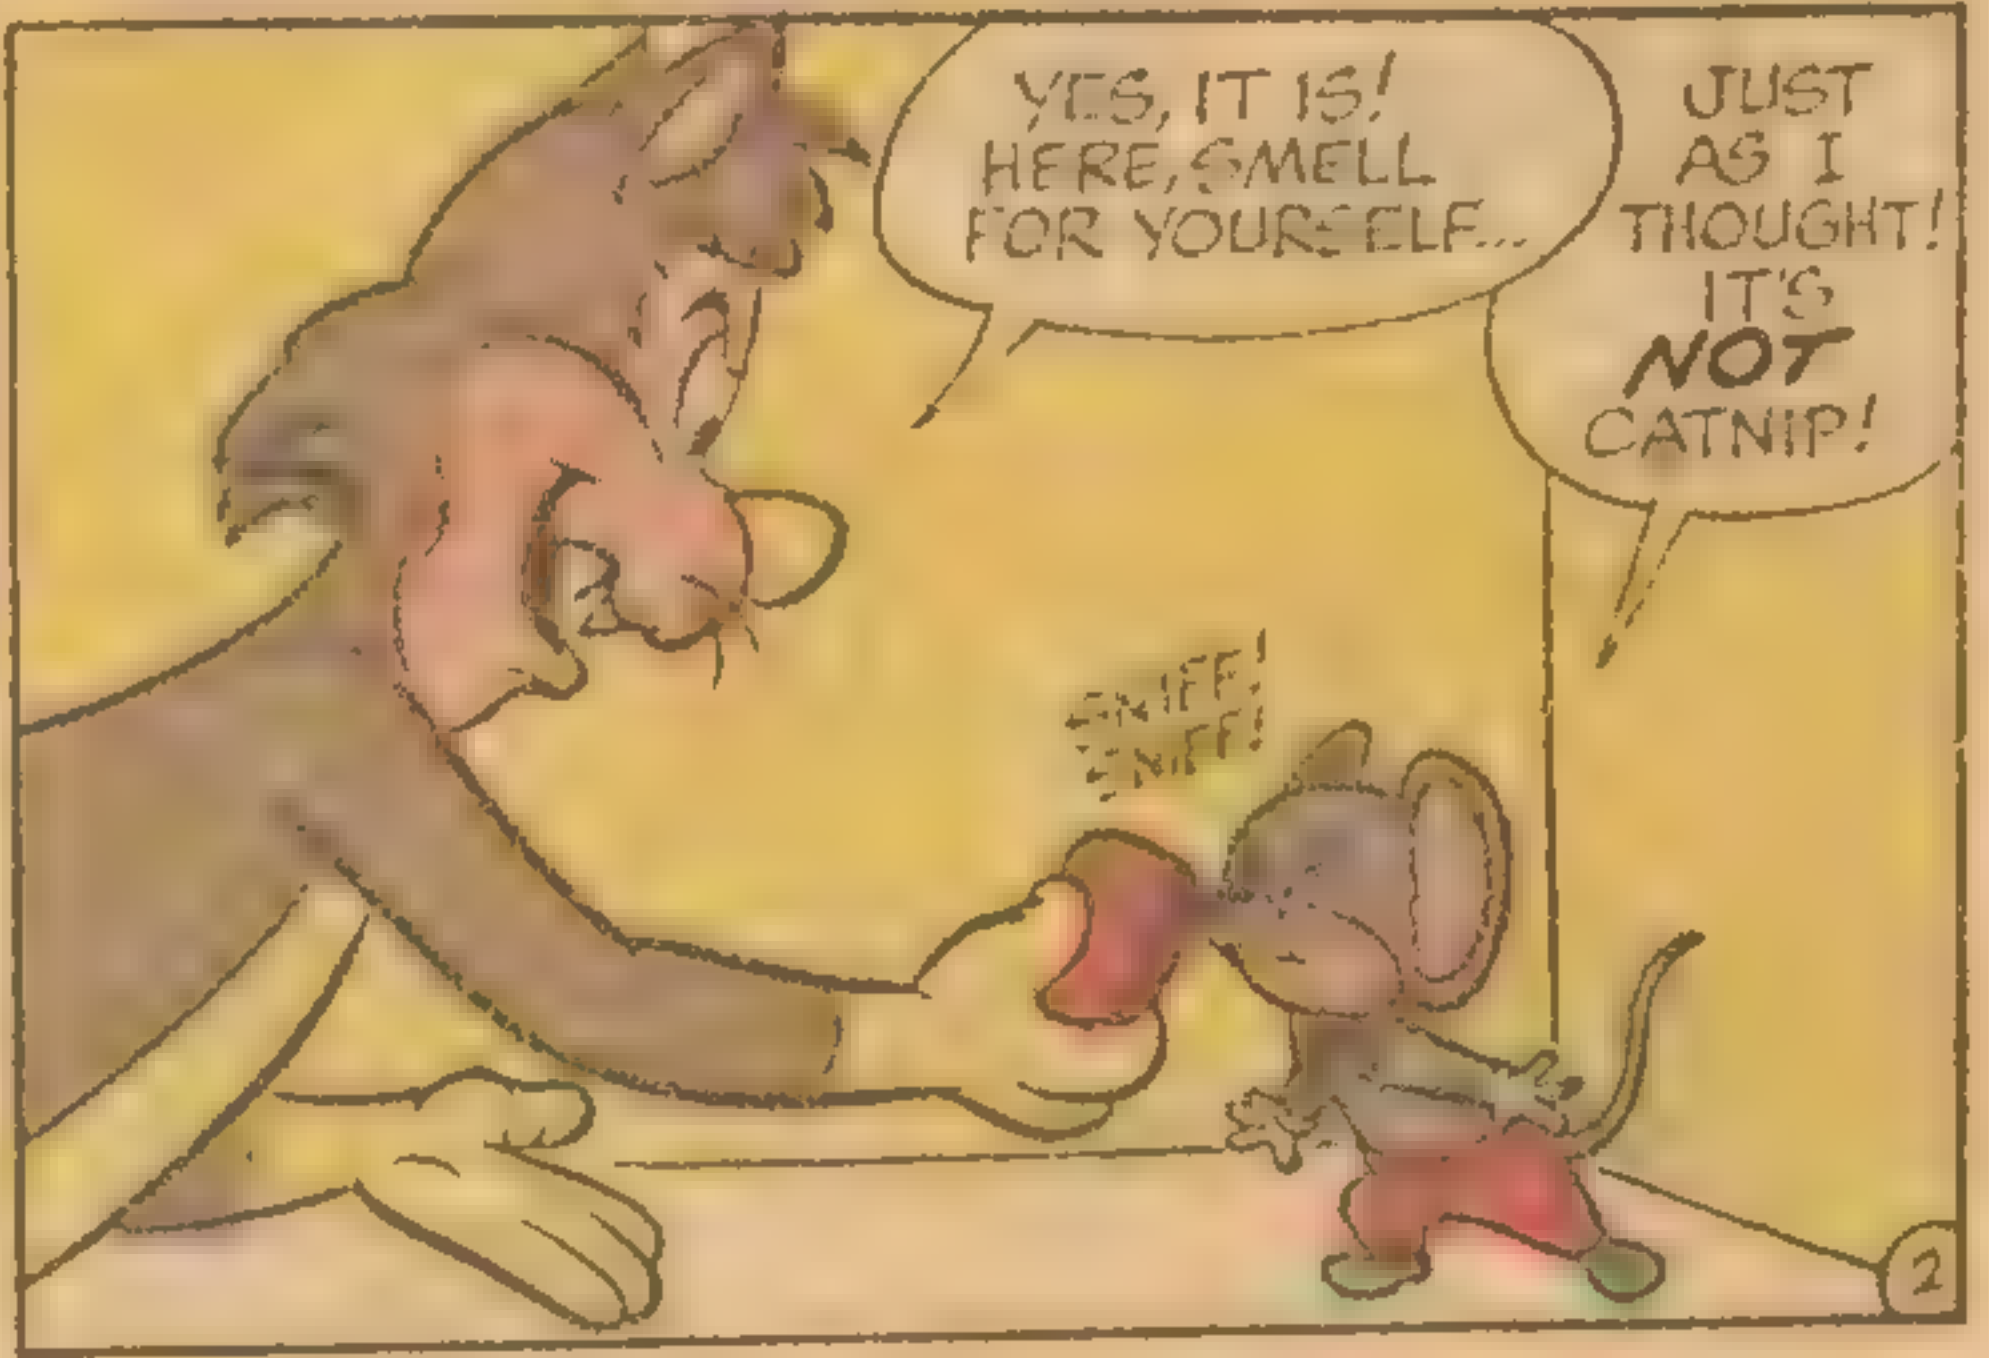

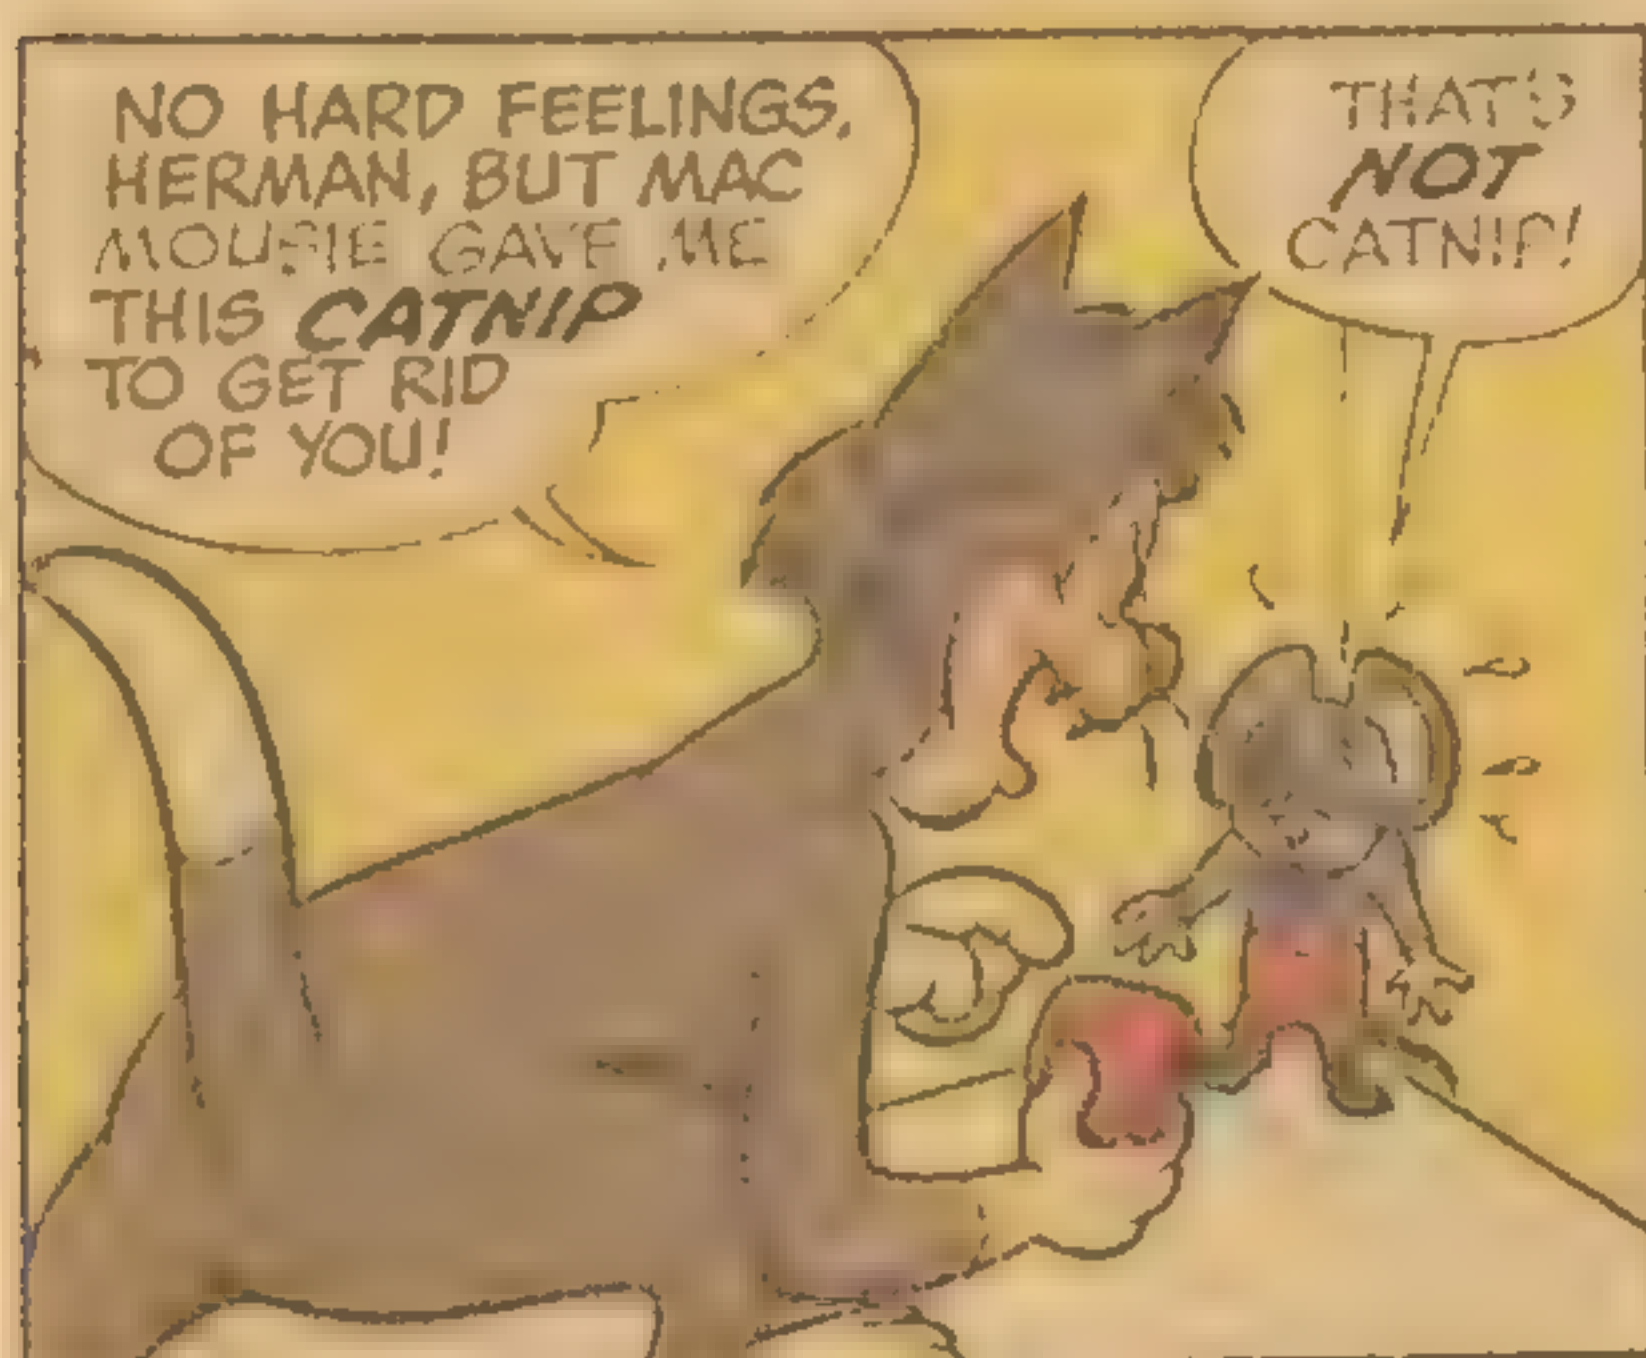

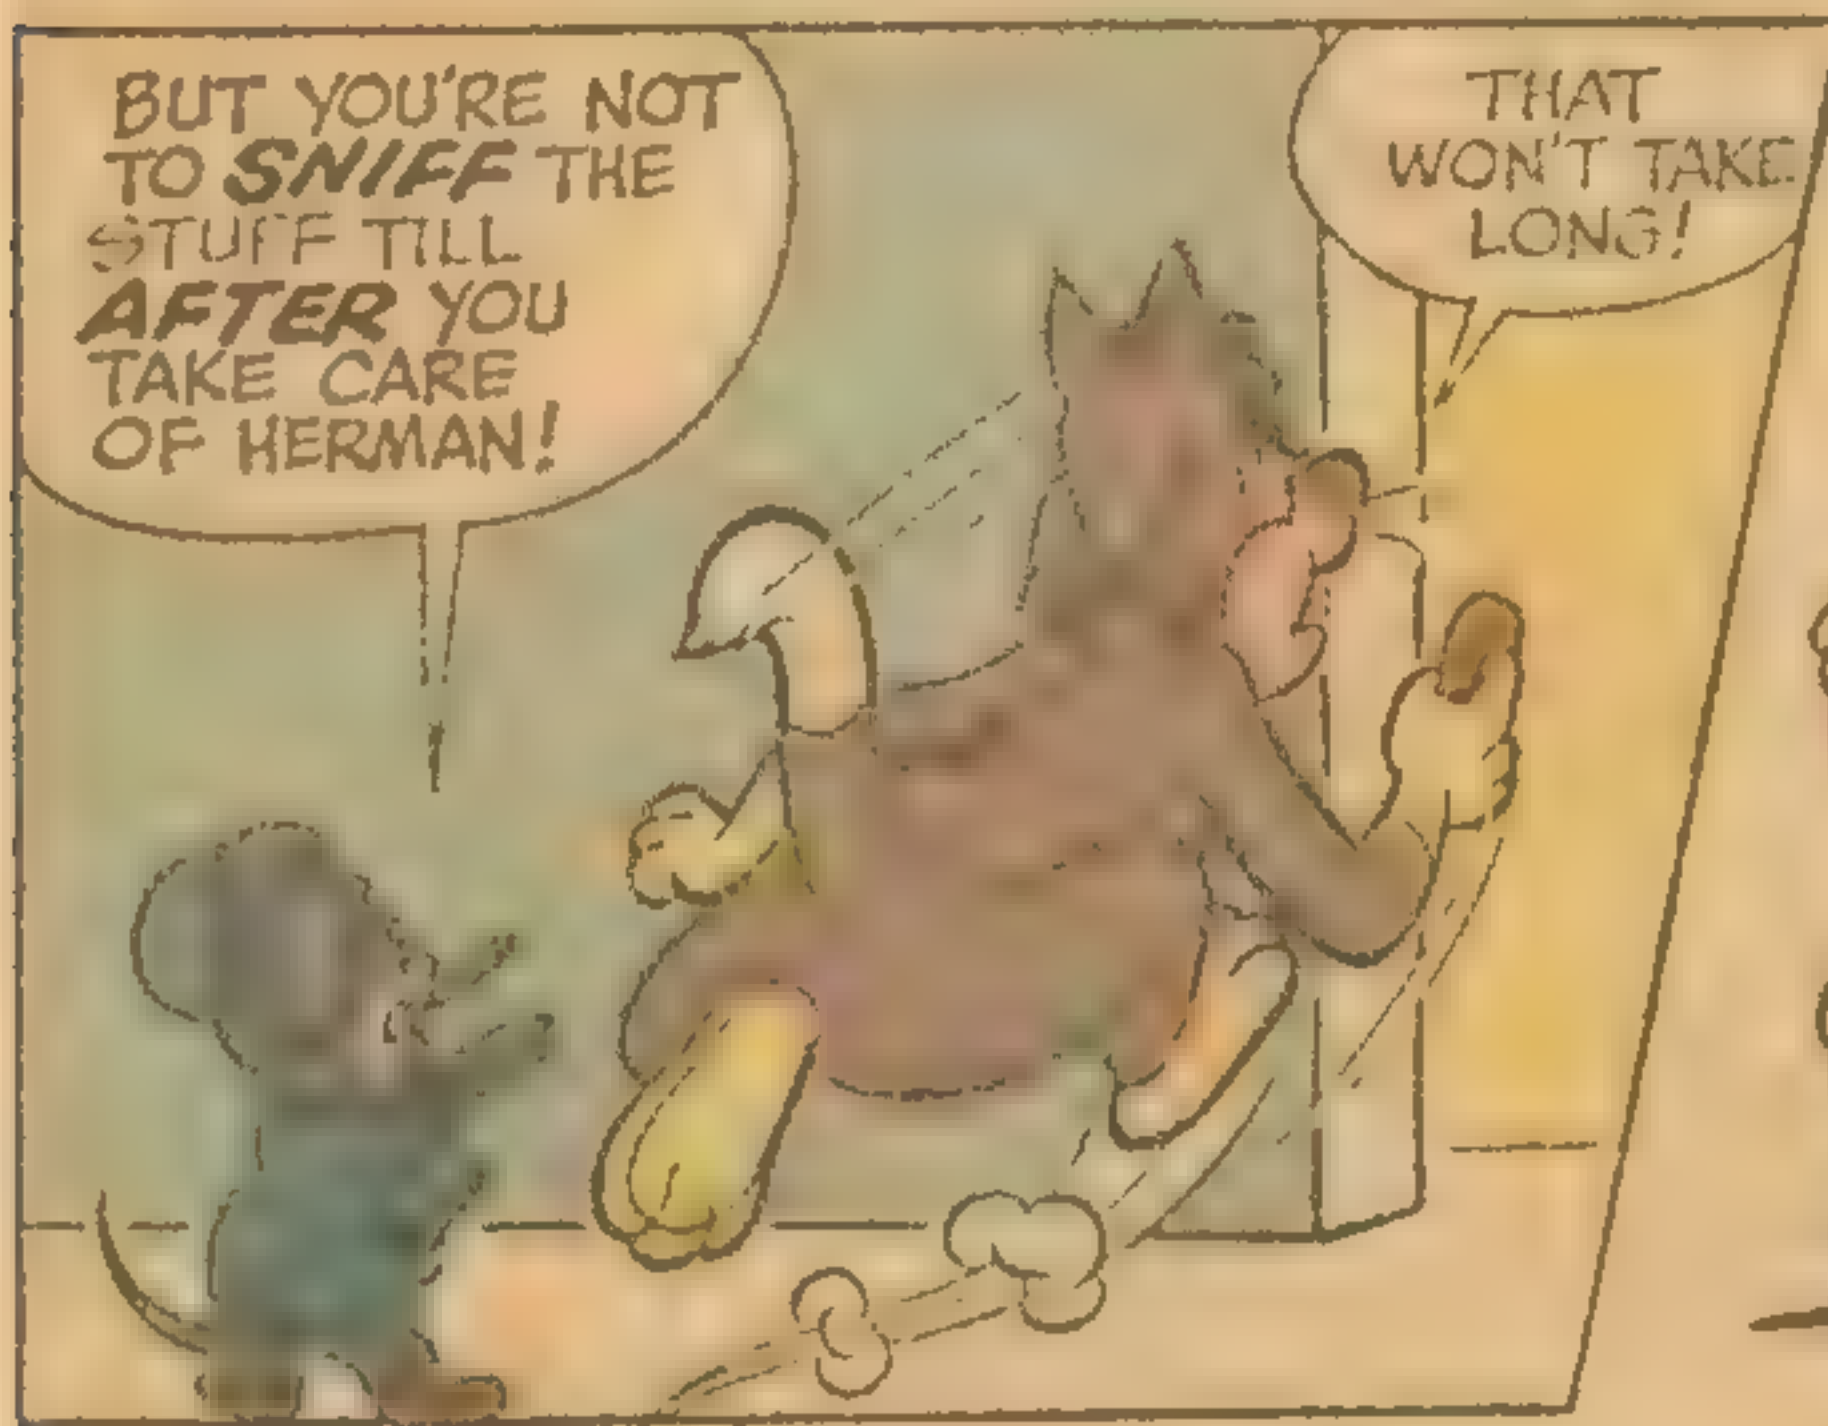

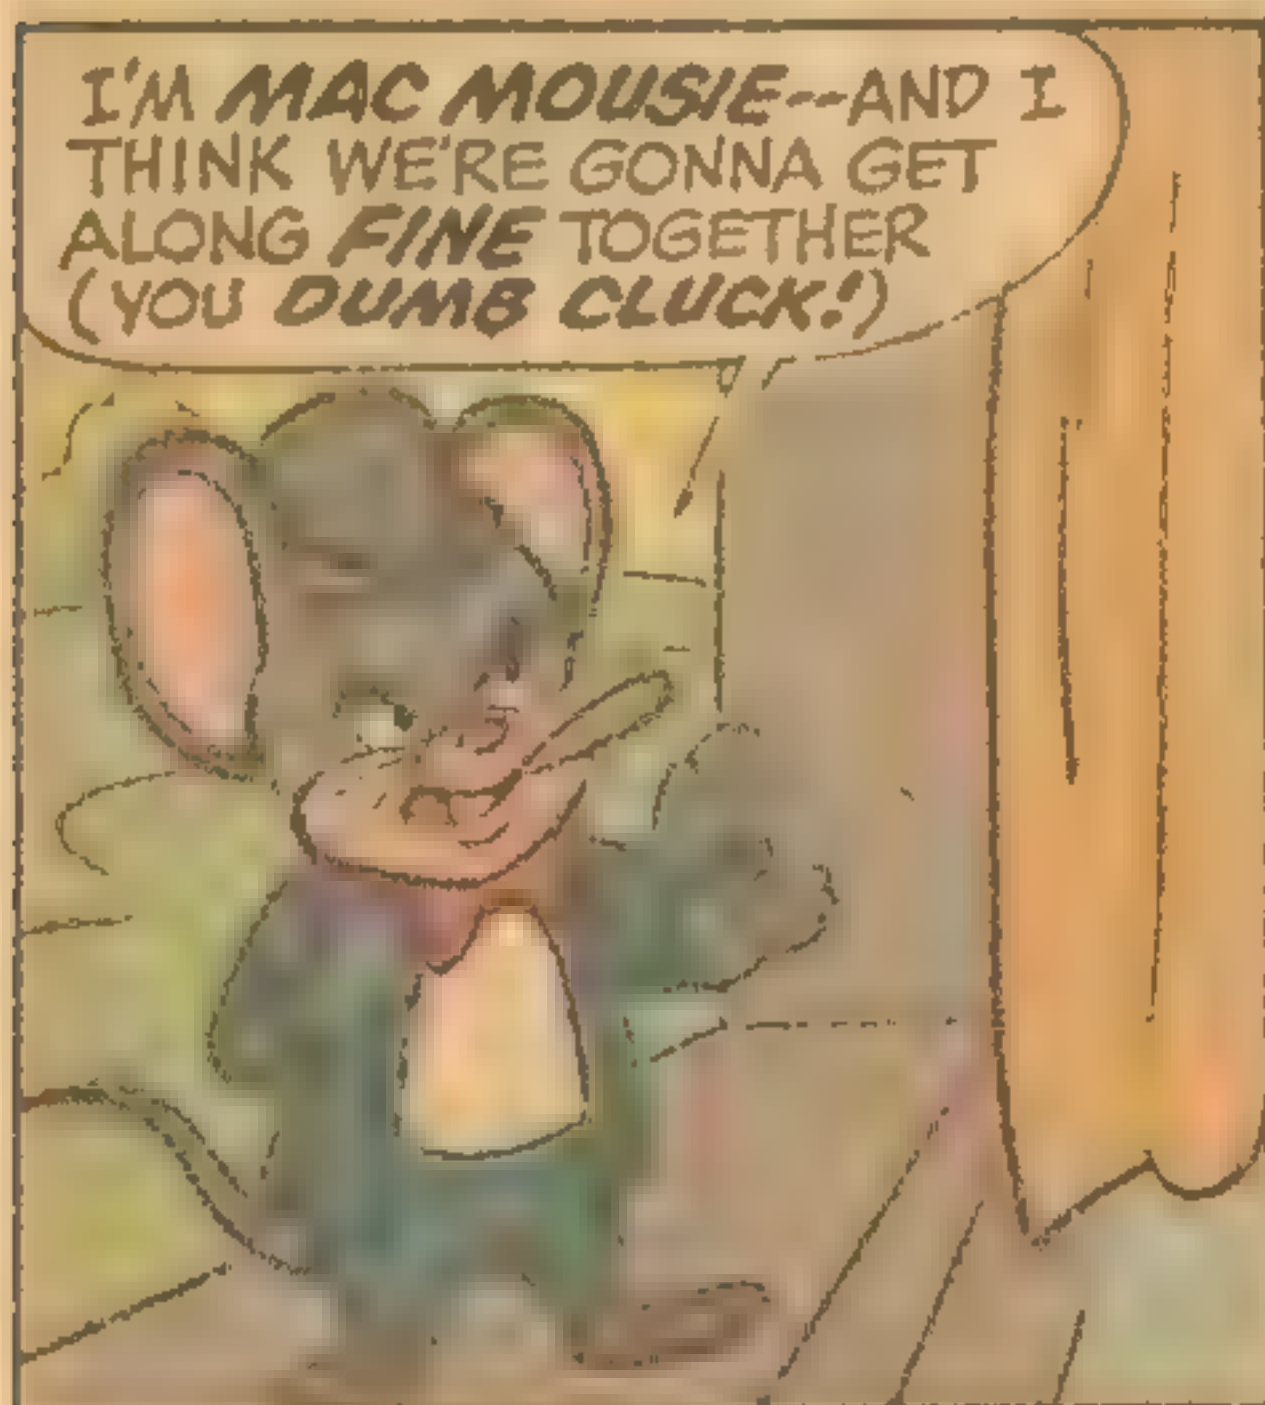

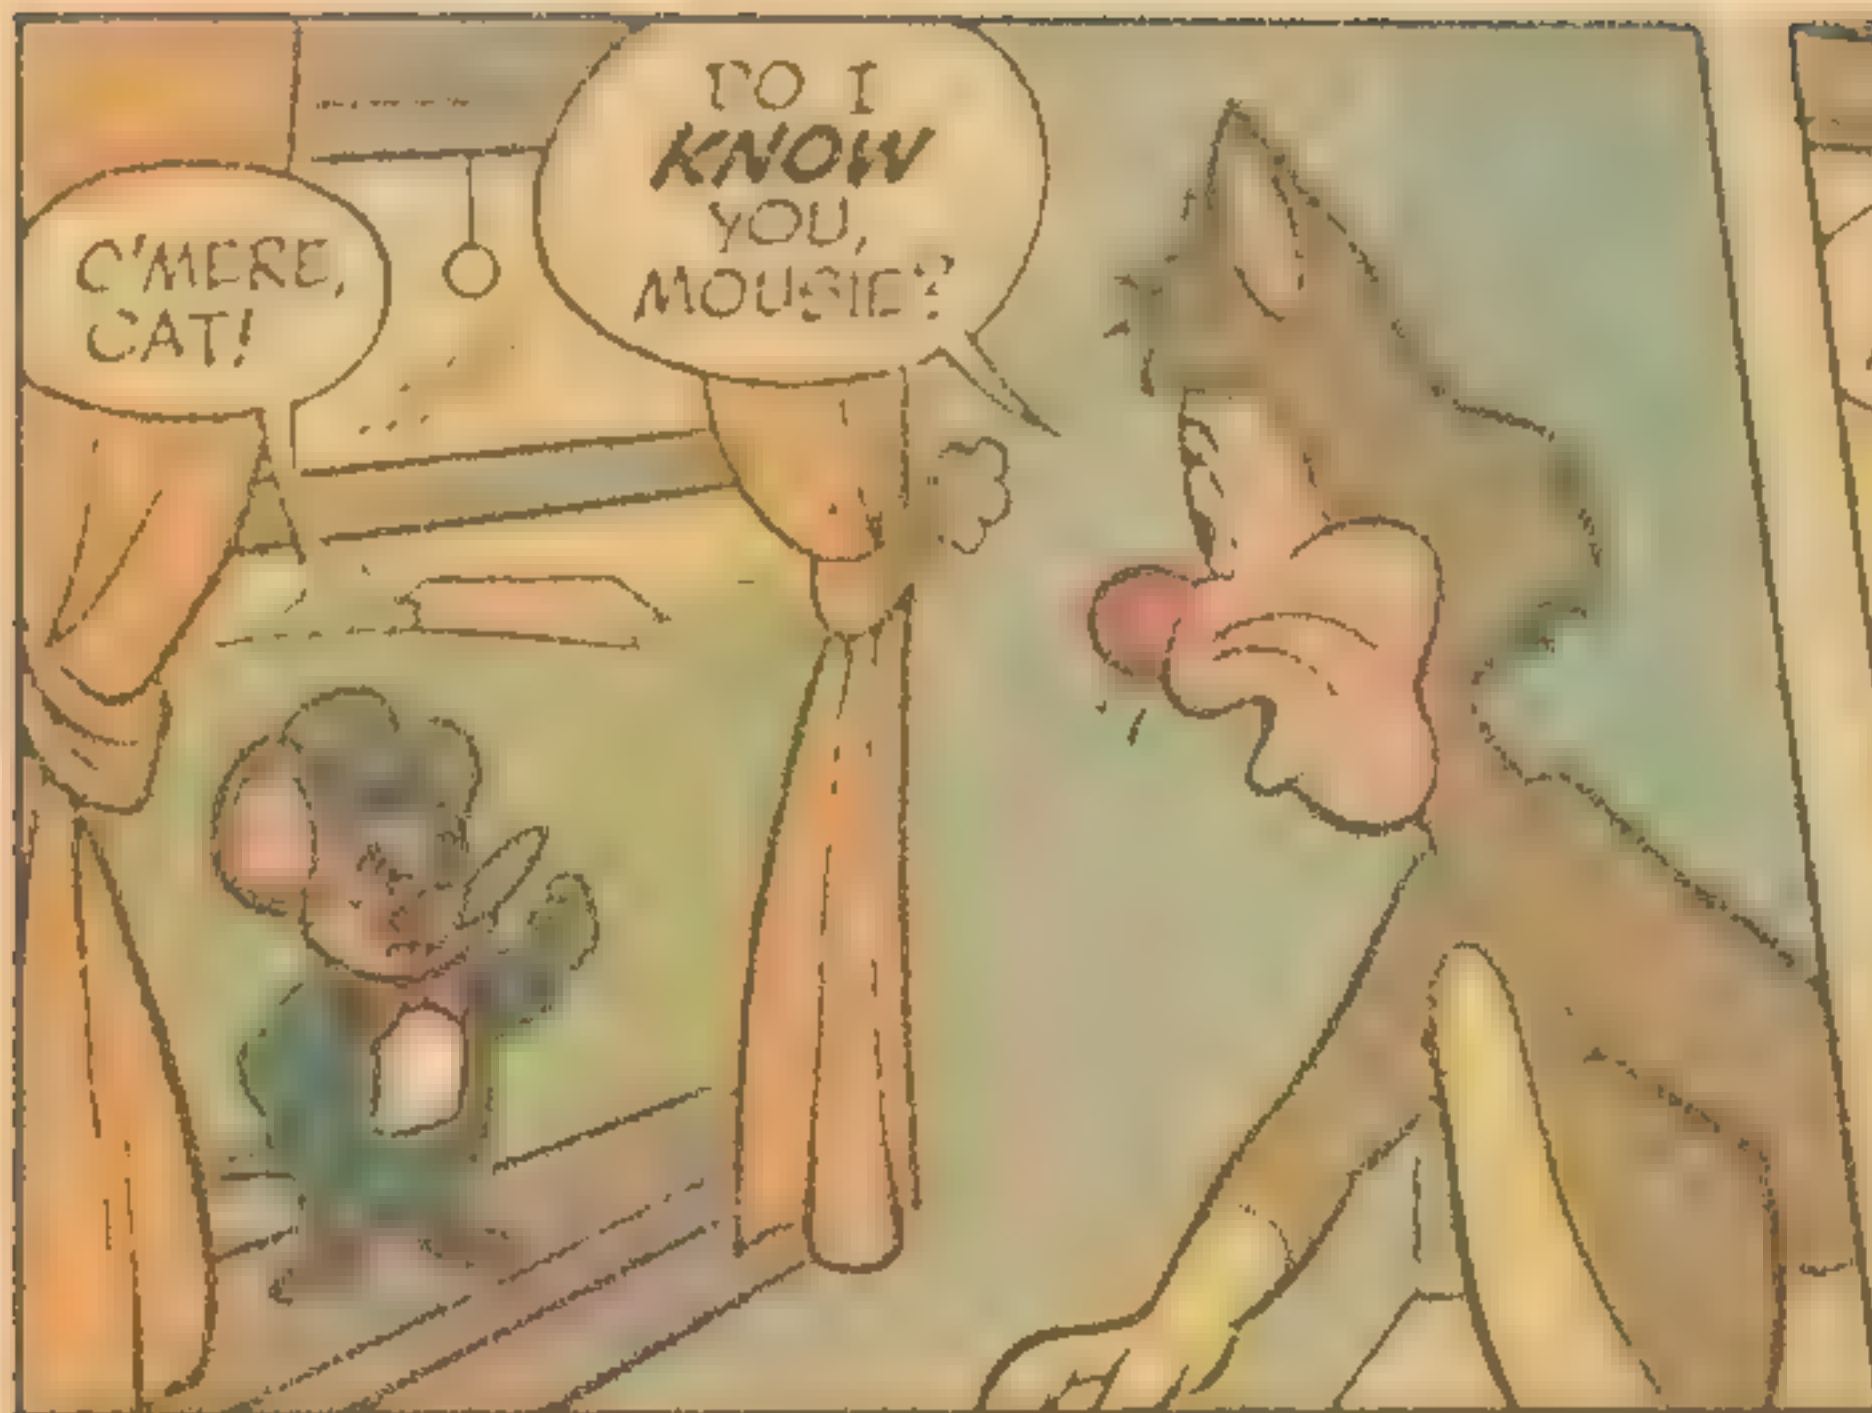

Rollo tapped his brother's grammar book. "It's good I read this," he said. "The fox tried to pretend he was Ralph's teacher, but he couldn't fool me! He called me Ralph's YOUNGEST brother. Any teacher would know it should be YOUNGER!"

It shoots as good as it looks.

The Daisy® "Safari Mark I"™ looks, feels and acts just like a big-game hunter's gun.

But it's scaled to your size, so you can make a big game out of learning marksmanship.

It's not a toy. You'll know that the first time you heft one and feel that solid weight and balance.

The "Safari Mark I" has things you'll find only on grown-up guns...like a crossbolt safety and trigger guard cocking (ask Dad about those).

And...to make learning marksmanship more fun, we'll make you a deal. We'll give you a $4.00 Trap-Target Kit for just $1.99 when you buy your "Safari Mark I" or any Daisy air-gun.

While you're there pick-up the new "Air Rifle Marksman" booklet (it's loaded with marksman information including local shooting education programs you can join), or send 50c to Daisy, Dept. 103, Rogers, Arkansas 72756 and we'll send you a copy.

Since the 1800's, American boys have learned marksmanship with a Daisy. Now it's your turn.

DAISY TRAP-TARGET KIT

OF ANY DAISY.

A $4.00 value

The kit includes: trap frame, Targetex backstop, Daisy Air Rifle Manual, set of NRA 15-foot match targets and a set of "Pop-Out Bullseye" targets.
